

Cyber Security Platform (Sophos MDR)

Helping your organisation detect, respond to, and contain cyber threats.

What is a Managed Detection and Response (MDR) solution?

An MDR solution is a cyber security service that helps organisations detect, respond to, and contain cyber threats. It combines advanced security technology with human expertise to monitor, analyse, and respond to incidents in real time.

MDR services take proactive action to contain and remediate threats and act as an extension of an organisation's security team. In contrast, traditional solutions only provide alerts for potential threats.

Ransomware and Breach Prevention services

The need for continuous security operations has become imperative. Now more than ever, with the complexity of modern operating environments and the speed of cyber threats, it is increasingly difficult for most organisations to successfully manage detection and response independently.

Sophos MDR offers an expert team which stops advanced human-led attacks. Sophos takes action to neutralise threats before they disrupt business operations or compromise sensitive data.

Features of Sophos MDR as a Service

Proactive Threat Detection: Continuously monitor your network for suspicious activity and identify potential threats early.

Expert-Led Threat Hunting: A team of skilled security analysts actively search for advanced threats that may have evaded traditional defences.

24/7 Security Monitoring: Provides round-the-clock surveillance to ensure your systems are always secure.

Rapid Incident Response: Immediately responds to security incidents, minimising downtime and potential damage.

Advanced Security Technology: Leverages cutting-edge security tools and techniques to protect your organisation.

Reduced Security Burden: Offloads the complexities of keeping your business secure to experts, allowing you to focus on your core business.
